Russia Will Join Japanese Peace Conference

GENERAL Eisenhower is reported to have said that the "one world's strength" is in the "one world's mind." It is almost ridiculous for us to be talking in terms of "fright and hysteria." The statement needs taking to heart. The overwhelming strength to which General Eisenhower referred is, of course, latent and not actual. The national incomes of the North Atlantic Treaty members and their associates have been estimated at a total of $238,500 million, against a total national income of about $100,000 million for Soviet Russia and her European allies. On this and ancillary evidence it is reckoned that the Western potential would always ensure ultimate victory. It is a reckoning which misses out on a number of vital emotional factors including the probability that, in the event of war between West and East, a very large part of continental Europe's manpower would be reluctant to fight Russia and might even become actively hostile to Russia's enemies. Such factors aside, it can well be argued that the latent military strength offers a deterrent in the calculations of a possible enemy. Both Kaiser Wilhelm and Adolf Hitler would have thought again if they had been convinced that the immense power of the United States would be mobilized and turned against them before they could bring Europe to its knees.

BUT where General Eisenhower's remark is valuable is when he characterizes prevailing "fright and hysteria" as "ridiculous." Another prominent American citizen, Mr. Justice Douglas, has had something useful to say on the subject of "fright and hysteria" and their consequences. In the magazine "Look" he has pointed out that the American people "have become victims of military thinking," and that that fact, "the cause of American insecurity," is the cause of American insecurity. The extent of this victimization of the civil mind is seen in an apparently unending series of "crises" which go to Munich to help "organize a centre of revolutionary activity against the Soviet regime." Such acts, ponderously backed by the United States, published by the Voice of America, financed from Washington, tend to reduce the psychological warfare of the democracies to outrageous absurdity. They serve, nevertheless, to create in simple democratic minds a sense of awful emergency, of revolution and counter-revolution, on a catastrophic scale.

IT should not be thought that the "fright and hysteria" to which General Eisenhower refers, or the victimization of the public mind, which is the anxiety of Mr. Justice Douglas, are exclusively American conditions. There is a good deal of both, no doubt, in Soviet Russia, and particularly in the satellite countries. There is a rising volume of both in Western Europe, including Britain. The result, in the view of Mr. Douglas, is that we are steadily losing ground, particularly in Asia, not to Communist arms but to Communist doctrines. The revolt against "African imperialism and domestic landlordism" in the Middle East as well as in the Far East cannot be quelled by policies made subsidiary to strategic conceptions and built around the retention of oligarchies made up of those who have shared in the profits of foreign imperialism and are the diehards of domestic landlordism. It would seem to be able to go to war against Communism to preserve a status which is the very spring and source of Communism. By all means let us have the confidence General Eisenhower has in our defensive capacity; but let us make sure that the purpose of it all is to defend the right things.

Persians Like Stokes Oil Plan

TEHRAN, Monday (Reuters).—Mr. Richard Stokes, Britain's oil envoy, today handed Persian delegates a plan to end the oil dispute. Persian delegates said afterwards: "We think agreement possible." Persian delegates were smiling as they left the 40-minute session and immediately hurried to a joint meeting of the Cabinet and Oil Commission at Premier Mossadeq's house.

An official communiqué said: "At the fifth meeting the British delegation presented the Persian delegation with proposals outlining a possible arrangement for the future of the oil industry in Southern Iran. The time of the next meeting will be fixed subsequently." The British oil envoy saw the Shah for more than an hour before attending this evening's meeting.

U.S. sources said today that Mr. Averell Harriman, President Truman's envoy, was now playing a bigger role in developments.

Today's meeting of the delegations was postponed from yesterday because it was understood Mr. Stokes wanted time for last minute consultations with the British Foreign Office before presenting the draft.

Providing a draft agreement on Saturday night, Mr. Stokes said the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which the Persians sought to nationalize, would disappear as such. But this did not rule out the possibility that a new company would be a subsidiary of Anglo-Iranian.

Informal Persian sources said Mr. Stokes was repeating last June's offer by Anglo-Iranian to set up a new company with both Persian and British directors. But Tehran Radio last night quoted the Persian Oil Nationalization Board's chairman, Aliyari Saleh, as saying he thought agreement could be reached today.

Mr. Stokes was reported to have said that the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which the Persians sought to nationalize, would disappear as such. But this did not rule out the possibility that a new company would be a subsidiary of Anglo-Iranian.

Buffer Zone Holds Up Truce Talks

SEOUL, Monday (Reuters).—After a cease-fire meeting described by a U.N. spokesman as "unproductive," the chief Communist delegate General Nam Il, warned over Pyongyang Radio tonight that the conference will "not make any progress" unless the U.N. changes its position on the buffer zone issue.

In a statement read in the Korean language, General Nam Il said the Korean talks "will not take on any significance" unless the Allies hedge from their present attitude on where to stop the shooting across the peninsula. He called on the U.N. delegation "to take into consideration our demands" and urged the Allies to "change the distorted demands they have made up to now."

The Communists have pressed for a demilitarized zone along the 38th Parallel. The U.N. demanded a buffer zone generally along the present battle lines, most of which are in North Korea.

Points not disclosed. Admiral Charles Turner Joy, chief Allied delegate, opened today's 22nd session by replying to five questions submitted yesterday by General Nam Il. These questions were not disclosed but an Allied spokesman, Brigadier General William Nuccio, said they were "partly theoretical."

General Nam Il replied by calling Admiral Joy's statement "unsatisfactory." He again rejected the American suggestion to bypass temporarily the deadlock over the buffer zone and discuss other points on the agenda such as the exchange of prisoners and arrangements to supervise and carry through any armistice.

Meanwhile, nearly 300 American Fifth Air Force planes flew in pre-dawn strikes today, striking Red troops, railways, roads and bridges.

Welcomes Union. He went on to recall that "the majority of the inhabitants of Jordan and Iraq were of Syrian origin," and that the former would be welcome if they decided to rejoin their Syrian homeland providing that Iraq disengages herself from obligations toward a foreign power, imposed on her by treaties still in force.

Iraq Signs Oil Agreement

BAGHDAD, Monday (Reuters).—A new Anglo-Iraqi oil agreement was signed today, it was officially announced by Khalil Ibrahim, Director-General of Propaganda, on behalf of the Iraq government.

Under the agreement Iraq will get 50 per cent of the profits. Negotiations for a new agreement had been going on in Baghdad between the Iraq government and the Iraq Petroleum Company since May 8.

Detailed proposals were submitted to the Iraqi Council of Ministers by Mr. H. S. Gibson, chief negotiator of the Iraq Petroleum Company, before he returned to London last month.

Shishakly On Jordan

CAIRO, Monday (AP).—The situation in Jordan "is of the highest concern to the entire Arab world, especially to Syria and Saudi Arabia, and not only to Iraq and Jordan," Colonel Adil Shishakly, Chief of Staff of the Syrian Army, told the Damascus correspondent of "Al-Ahram" in an interview published here today.

Colonel Shishakly declared that during his recent visit to Saudi Arabia he had conferred with King Ibn Saud on the future of Jordan. "King Ibn Saud shares my view that the fate of Jordan should be determined by the Jordan people itself through a plebiscite controlled by a neutral commission constituted either by the Arab League or by the U.N.," he said.

Zionist Congress Opens Today in Jerusalem

The 23rd Zionist Congress will be opened at 5 o'clock this afternoon when 480 Congress delegates, from 60 countries, members of the Jewish Agency Executive, members of the Government and Knesset, veterans of the Zionist Movement and other guests join in a solemn convocation at Herzl's Tomb at the summit of Jerusalem's highest hill. This is the first Congress to be convened since the establishment of the State and the first to be held in Jerusalem. The initial Congress was convened in Basle in 1897, and the intervening sessions at Vienna, Zurich, Geneva, Lucerne, Prague, The Hague, Hamburg, Carlsbad and London. The 22nd Congress was held in Basle in 1947. Tonight at 8 o'clock the Congress will convene in its own home, the Binyanei Ha'Ooma.

Influence of World Movement Agency Leaders Proud of Record

By Moshe Brilliant. The underlying issue before the 23rd Zionist Congress opening in Jerusalem this evening is whether the World Zionist Movement shall influence life in Israel or whether it should be a welfare organization. The secondary parties to Israel want a strong Zionist Organization with executive and policy-making authority in specific fields. Such a set-up would presumably enable them to exercise through the world organization the influence they have been unable to wield through the organs of the State. Mapai, as the dominant party in Israel, tend to regard this trend as an intrusion on the sovereign rights of the Israel Government. They want a Zionist organization to render unconditional aid to the Jewish State.

That is what is behind the main issues on the Congress agenda, such as the status of the Zionist Organization and the proposed charter. On these questions, the gap is wide between the two extremes, represented on the one hand by Mr. Ben Gurion and on the other by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland. Mr. Ben Gurion is believed to be ready to accept special diplomatic status for the representatives of the Zionist Organization in Israel and to introduce legislation assigning them fields of activity. His condition is, in effect, that they first undertake to support the State of Israel and that this support should not prove a hindrance to cooperation from other, non-Zionist, Jewish quarters.

Fluid Line-up. Rabbi Silver wants a charter according to the Zionist Organization a semi-Government.

On the other hand, the General Zionists want a reform of the Zionist system, particularly the aspect which accords double representation for Israel. This too has political overtones, as Mapai, the strongest party in Israel, benefits most from the double Shetel.
